3 Scan the text and check your predictions.

How much is it worth?

- 1 When people think of a valuable company they tend to think of how much the company is worth in terms of money. Every year, companies report how much money they have made and directors' salaries and bonuses also depend on the money brought in. While this may be what the company owners value, to build a successful business, you need to think about the things customers value. Customer service, well-known brands, and quality products are all ways in which we can judge the value of a company.
- 2 Successful businesses know that they must provide good customer service as they will be judged by it. For instance, rude customer service, unlike a faulty product, cannot be returned. Of course, you can apologize, but the damage has already been done and sales could decline as a result. Excellence in customer service is very important because the cost of attracting a new customer is much higher than the cost of keeping an existing one. Which means increasing the number of customers you keep can make your company more profitable. If a company has a unique product, this is perhaps less of an issue, but when two or more companies are selling basically the same product, the success of the company depends on how well its customers are treated. This means that companies need to communicate clearly, fix problems quickly, personalize the sales experience, and employ the right people.
- 3 One way to make a company successful is to build a strong brand. This is because people associate a certain standard and quality with brands and this builds trust. It seems people are willing to spend a lot of money on good-quality products even when they do not need them. Your laptop shows the time. Your cell phone displays the time. So does your car's dashboard, the screen in the subway, and millions of other items. A watch is no longer essential, so why are these expensive items still popular? Watches have been rebranded so that they are no longer simply tools for telling the time. They show what kind of a person the wearer is, represent tradition, and use technology. Much like cars, they are used by people to show their status.
- 4 Brands are also important because they say something about who we are. When people think of a brand, the values associated with it come to people's minds. Whether a brand is seen as family-friendly, popular, or user-friendly is important because we like to buy brands that represent how we like to present ourselves to others. If people see themselves as creative then they are more likely to buy creative products that match their self-image. One way companies build these values and their reputation is through their logo and by linking it to particular celebrities. If a famous person is known for being a good family person, then a company may use them to help link this characteristic to their products.
- 5 Companies, when well-managed, can create value by focusing on quality products and building their brand. With clever marketing and by maintaining good customer service a company can push up its value a long way beyond what it would be otherwise.
